It was a small Spitz dog, and the owner stated he destred to have it receive the best care, for which he would pay liberally. Mr. Butter then determined to take the animal to his Brooklyn office, but before he startled proceeded to administer a dose of medicine. The dog was held by a boy, and the medicine was forced into his month; but while Mr. Batter, with his hand in the dog's mouth, was endemvoring to make it swallow, the animal bit the thumb of his right hand so badly that the marks of six sharp teeth could be plainly seen. On the terry bout to Brooklyn the dog escaped from a basket in which he was confined and bit a main it the leg. The animal was soon shot by a policeman.
